EBL for Teacher Development Questionnaire Takeaways

- Adaptivity without AI
- Flexibility
- Sustainable scalability across contexts
- Blended rhythm enhances learner consistency
- Digital pedagogy: reflection

The screenshot shows a Moodle course structure. The main page has a title 'EBL for Teacher Development Questionnaire Takeaways' and a sub-section 'Introduction'. The 'Introduction' section contains a photograph of a hand writing on a yellow sticky note, a text block about the course's purpose, and a 'Content' section with instructions for the user. A sidebar on the left lists course contents: 'Introduction', 'Notes', 'Mails', and 'Letters'.

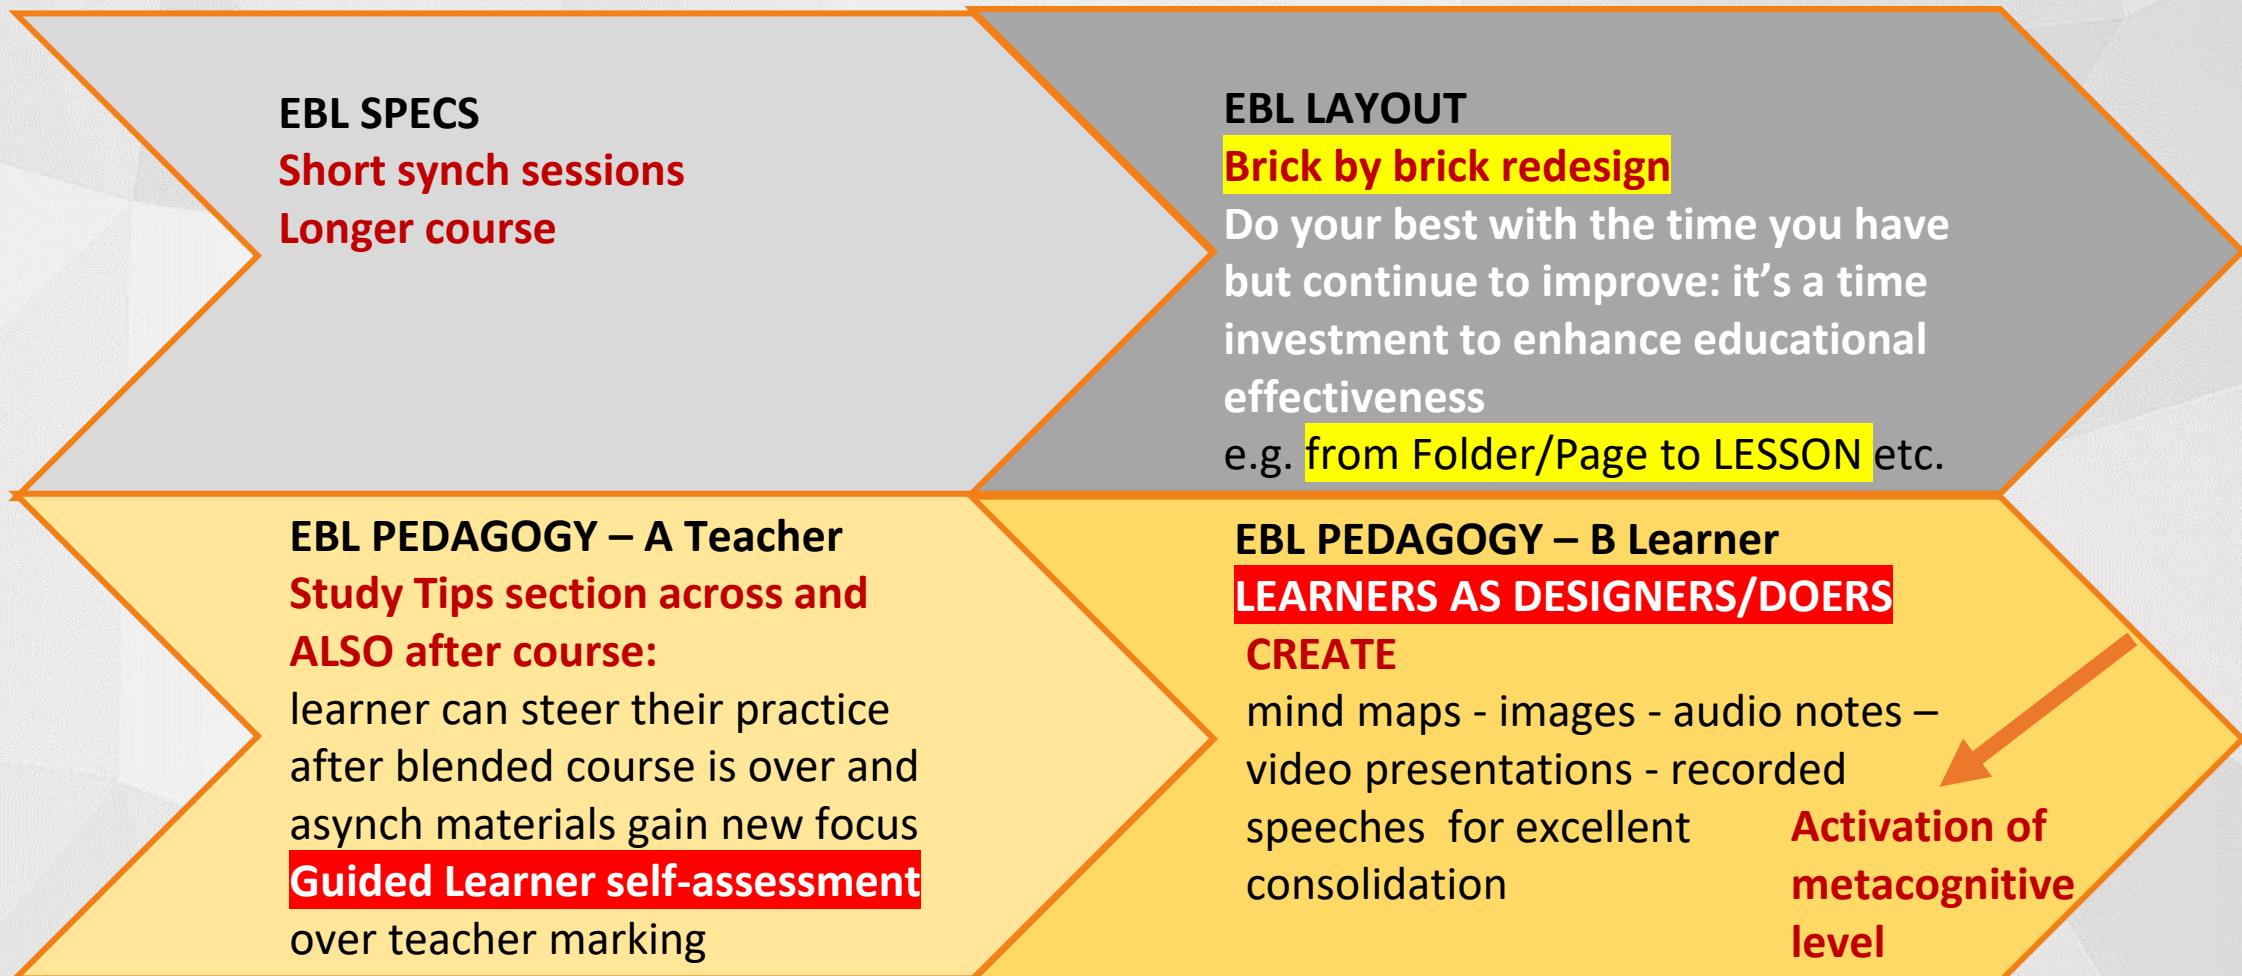

The screenshot shows a Moodle course titled 'English Boost Live'. The main page features a photograph of a laptop displaying the course title. It includes general information about the course, such as target users (6 participants), platform (live sessions on BBB), start date (Tuesday, 6 March 2024), and end date (Tuesday, 10 March 2024). Below this, there is a section titled 'Speaking and Writing Practice' with a sub-section 'THINGS ARE GOING TO GET WEIRD' and a video thumbnail. The page also includes a 'Pre-Task' section with instructions for studying expressions and a 'DIRECTIONS' section with tasks for speaking and writing practice.

Lessons Learned about EBL & Approaches to Material Design When Time Is a Constraint

English Boost Live shows that Moodle can deliver adaptive, scalable language training even without AI

Next Steps

Replicate course model for English language
Expand to other languages
Integrate AI support tools with “human in the loop” ethical approach
Continue evidence-based educational design
